Marshall Darrach, the Shakespearean exponent, who has given several recitals in St. Louis in former seasons, will be heard in a programme of special interest next Saturday morning at the Odeon. "Twelfth Night" is to be the topic, and "Twelfth Night" is to be the topic, and Mr. Darrach is said to be quite at his best in this play. The fact that Viola Allen is soon to be heard in St. Louis in the same play makes the reading of timely interest. Mr. Darrach's list of patronesses is particularly long and contains names of much prominence this year. Miss Hortense Courlander, who has assisted Mr. Darrach for several seasons, has been visiting in town for some weeks.
